Joyous celebrations as Gaddafi rule ends

Strongman found, killed after years in power and months on the run from rebels ◗ Libyans around the world take to streets to share moment ◗ Horror not over for thousands of families ◗ Tough road going forward

DAN KITWOOD/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Young Libyan national women react to a video showing the moment of Gaddafi's capture during celebrations outside the Libyan embassy in London, England.

Gunfire echoed across Libya's main cities Thursday as crowds poured into the streets to celebrate the death of Muammar Gaddafi, ruler of the North African nation for 42 years.

Initially, fighters in camouflage garb flashed victory signs, fired their weapons into the air and danced as news spread that Gaddafi's hometown of Sirte had fallen. The celebrations, televised by international broadcasters, reached a crescendo with the announcement that Gaddafi had died. Men toted their children on their shoulders as groups of civilians formed swirling circles to dance.

PHILIPPE DESMAZES/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Did this young man kill Gaddafi? Reports are mixed.

"This is the happiest moment of my life," said Ibrahim Suleiman, a 22-year-old driver in the city of Benghazi. "When I heard the news on television, I didn't believe it; I ran off to the streets and I started jumping up and down."

In Sirte, cries of "Allahu Akbar," or "God is Great," rang out. In Tripoli, once Gaddafi's seat of power, children and ululating women took to the streets to celebrate alongside men. Some held photos of dead loved ones.

In scenes similar to those that played out in Egypt after President Hosni Mubarak was toppled in February, Libyans — waving the tri-color flags that have becomes a symbol of their revolution — chanted: "Raise your head up high; you're a free Libyan." Others yelled: "The blood of martyrs will not go in vain." BLOOMBERG

News in brief

Obama warns other leaders

WASHINGTON. President Barack Obama hailed Muammar Gaddafi's death as a warning to authoritarian leaders across the Middle East that iron-fisted rule "inevitably comes to an end" and as vindication for his cautious U.S. strategy on Libya. REUTERS

So who pulled the trigger?

SIRTE. The exact circumstances of Gaddafi's demise are still unclear. In a video filmed by a bystander, Gaddafi is shown being dragged off a truck and pulled to the ground by his hair. "Keep him alive," someone shouts. Gunshots then ring out. The camera veers off.

But Libya's ruling body said Gaddafi was killed when a gunfight broke out after his capture between supporters and rebels. It said no order had been given to kill him. REUTERS

Thousands are still missing

GENEVA. Dead bodies are being found regularly in mass graves, hospitals and other sites in Libya, including on roadsides, the International Committee of the Red Cross said. The agency said that thousands of families were waiting to find out what had happened to missing loved ones. REUTERS

ANALYSIS

What's next for Libya?

LONDON. The death of Muammar Gaddafi will be regarded as a victory for the Libyan people, NATO and democracy. But euphoria at the demise of a dictator should not disguise the problems faced by the new Libyan government in cementing peace, rebuilding and implementing good governance in the north African nation, analysts said.

Analysts stressed the National Transitional Council, which led resistance to Gaddafi, had won the war but would need to act quickly and decisively to take advantage of the peace.

Tribal differences, disputes between militia leaders and the expected involvement of exile groups would complicate the task.

"The real battle begins now to rein in the [rebels] and integrate them under the legal umbrella of the state in one of its various bureaucracies, army or police," said Larbi Sadiki, expert on North African politics at Exeter University. REUTERS

"There remains the biggest challenge of all: reconstruction and the battle for good government." SADIKI

In the news

Who's the rat now?

Gaddafi called the rebels who rose against him "rats," but he was captured cowering in a drainage pipe. "We ... brought Gaddafi out," said rebel fighter Salem Bakeer. "He was saying 'What's wrong? What's going on?' Then we took him and put him in the car." REUTERS

Occupy keeping peace with internal security

Despite confrontations, Occupiers feel safe ◗ Police report says heroin addict pulled knife on protesters ◗ Safety team handles internal conflicts

Up and down the makeshift sidewalks inside Tent City Square, muffled voices come through the walkie-talkies attached to people wearing neon-colored vests.

These are the members of the Safety Team — the policing patrol within Occupy Boston's encampment.

On the heels of an incident last Sunday night, when a heroin addict allegedly pulled a knife on protesters and urinated on a tent, the eight-person security team has been trying to keep the makeshift community more safe.

"[The issue of homelessness] and crime here is no different than it is in society in general," said Devon Pendleton, a protester. "Our safety team is designed to handle internal conflicts."

Armed with two-way radios, the amateur guards scour the premises, settling arguments and issues within the camp.

One guard donning a neon vest, who declined to give his name, said they are trying to keep the peace by "rounding up junkies and trying to kick them out," adding that the so-called junkies have continually been a problem.

He said Wednesday night a homeless man allegedly sexually harassed a woman posted at the information tent on Dewey Square.

The team told him to leave camp Thursday morning, he said.

"People wander in here high and drunk and try and get in tents," said the security member.

But Oliver, 25, said the guards make sure people are safe.

"You're always going to have drunk a—holes, wherever you go," he said. "The safety team is pretty efficient. It's not like this is a junkie haven."

Bay State tops Calif. as energy efficiency leader

COURTNEY SACCO/METRO

▶ The newly built wind turbine on Alford Street in Charlestown is yet another way that Massachusetts is implementing green technology.

Citing investment in public transit, development of green jobs and green building codes and grants, a leading energy organization named the Bay State tops in the nation for energy efficiency.

"Massachusetts earned the No. 1 ranking by excelling in every aspect," said Michael Sciortino, the report's author. He said that the state has "the most advanced building codes and land use codes in the country."

Massachusetts overtook California as the perennial leader of the State Energy Efficiency Scorecard, which was released Thursday by the American Council for an Energy-Efficient Economy.

"Central to Massachusetts' success is the continued implementation of the 2008 Green Communities Act, which laid the foundation for greater investment in energy efficiency programs," according to the report.

An excited Gov. Deval Patrick said, "It's nice to be No. 1 and we have earned it."

"We see energy efficient in the commonwealth as our first fuel," Patrick said. We "know the most economical fuel is that which we do not use."

While Massachusetts earned the top marks, the report showed that the nation was improving overall.

Total budgets for electricity efficiency programs increased to $4.5 billion in 2010, up from $3.4 billion in 2009. Also, 24 states have adopted energy efficiency standards, which set long-term energy savings targets, according to the report.

Cops bust men with cocaine, heroin

CHELSEA. Two California men were charged after they were allegedly found with 66 pounds of cocaine in a tractor-trailer in Chelsea.

The Wednesday night arrests of Miguel Agular, 43, and Jose Cubais, 38, come after a months-long investigation, prosecutors said.

In a separate bust in Dorchester, police pulled over Santo Gonzalez, 38, of Providence, and found heroin and cocaine in his rental car.

He was ordered held on $500,000 bail. ● METRO

Existing home sales fall in Sept.

WASHINGTON. Sales of existing homes fell in September, extending a pattern of declines and gains that show the industry continues to be buffeted by consumer pessimism and unemployment above 9 percent. Purchases dropped 3 percent to a 4.91 million annual rate, matching the median forecast of economists surveyed by Bloomberg News, figures from the National Association of Realtors showed. The median price dropped 3.5 percent from a year ago, and about one in five real estate agents polled said contracts had been canceled. BLOOMBERG

Cash flowed while NJ gov. weighed bid

Chris Christie's fundraising swing through western states last month brought in at least $530,000 as former U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft and a Stifel Financial Corp. co-chairman helped the New Jersey governor shatter the out-of-state fundraising record.

His trips generated more than $620,000 from non-New Jersey sources, out of almost $1.5 million raised by the state Republican Party in the quarter that ended last month, according to a New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission filing.

Christie, 49, the first Republican elected governor in New Jersey since 1997, spent the last week of September on a round of speeches and fundraisers, including stops in California and Missouri. He sought to attract money for home-state candidates as he weighed joining the race for the Republican presidential nomination next year. BLOOMBERG

"New Jersey has never had a governor as dynamic ... [with] donors and supporters across the country. This is unprecedented."

Dinosaurs: Bony, feathery and Totally Enormous

The word du jour for CMJ acts this year seems to be "dinosaur." There's Dinosaur Bones, a great indie rock outfit from Toronto who played earlier this week. There's Dinosaur Feathers, who at times sound like Jack White playing tropical music. They play in Brooklyn on Saturday night. And then there is possibly the most awesome band name of any act playing CMJ this year: Totally Enormous Extinct Dinosaurs! They play a whacked-out hybrid of electronic music that somehow sounds very human, and they're playing on Friday and Saturday nights. For additional information on any of these acts and more, visit www.cmj.com/marathon.

Givers

SALLY MORRIS/METRO

▶ Givers turned in an energetic show on Thursday at Ace Hotel. Catch them this weekend in Cambridge or NYC.

This sweet coed five-piece temper their world music flavor with charisma, distortion pedals and electronic undertones. And, when they jump up and down on stage, their energy is contagious. Just make sure you don't get the beer of the guy behind you all over your clothes when you start pogo-ing. If you don't make the NYC trip, you can catch them at the Middle East on Sunday. If you do go to NYC, get there early, because the lineup includes Metro faves like Free Energy, Unknown Mortal Orchestra and Gotye. The latter is a Belgian-Australian songwriter who has a really great knack for matching up catchy tunes with the right off-kilter instrumentation.

An Horse

This Aussie duo plays a punky sort of indie rock that recalls the glory days of bands like Superchunk and Sebadoh. Drummer Damon Cox and singer-guitarist Kate Cooper wail on their instruments with a focused agitation. Guitars are fuzzy, melodies are pretty and Cooper is a woman who knows the nuances of a well-delivered cuss word. If you missed them at Royale last night, get thee to NYC!

CJ FOECKLE

Yellow Ostrich

It's easy to get distracted by the unique instrumentation and cool gadgets that Alex Schaaf surrounds his songs with. Even though it's amazing that utility guy Jon Natchez is playing a huge sax and sampling himself several times over to sound like a horn section, and Schaaf is sampling his voice as many times to sound like a choir, none of it would really matter if the songs weren't so sturdy. Best lyric: "Mary, you are doing drugs/Don't you think we know?/You've always seemed a little too happy, Mary."

▶ Spaltro

Lady Lamb the Beekeeper

Local gal Aly Spaltro sometimes sounds like a heartbroken old lady, weaving lyrics so wise you'd swear they were written by a poet laureate. Oh, and did we mention she's only 22?

She plays her reverb-drenched guitar fluidly and has mastered a dynamic where she will be shouting passionately one minute and gently cooing and cradling listeners' hearts the next, all while stringing phrases together that surprise with each new unveiled word.

En Vogue

En Vogue? Aren't they, like, from the '90s? Free your mind! You may think they're not as untouchable as they once were, but what part of "You're Never Gonna Get It" did you not understand? These funky divas are back and are as bad as they ever were. It's definitely odd they're playing at an event with the word College in it though.

GETTY IMAGES

Action Bronson, Chris Webby, Kid Ink, Dom Kennedy, French Montana, Machine Gun Kelly

This is the best rap-for-your-buck show. Machine Gun Kelly, a self-described "little white boy from the Midwest" spits words so rapidly that his moniker is well-deserved. We can't get enough of Dom Kennedy's "2mph" song, and Kid Ink is probably the only rapper with enough guts to sample Survivor, Cyndi Lauper and Queen. And we're not talking "We Will Rock You" Queen, we're talking Freddie Mercury's last album with the band. Against these ambitious samples, Kid Ink raps funny rhymes like how he's "walkin' like a giant, fee-fi-foe-in'" and "runnin' like I've got the legs of a centipede." Whether he's walkin' or runnin', it's clear he's going somewhere.

'Today is the greatest day I've ever known'

The Smashing Pumpkins' legendary frontman Billy Corgan discusses his new tour, R.E.M.'s breakup Why 'nostalgia is the death of all art'

Billy Corgan is one of the titans of '90s alternative rock. He's a polarizing figure in some circles, having issued a few controversial remarks regarding his ex-bandmates — with whom he no longer tours. But with a new set of musicians touring under the Smashing Pumpkins name, Corgan wants to bring the band into the present.

Does the music you write under the Smashing Pumpkins name differ from material you've written as Zwan or your self-titled work?

The whole idea with the Pumpkins originally was supposed to be an experimental excitement kind of thing, whereas away from the Pumpkins, I tend to write a little bit more traditional music. There's something about the way the band was formed as being in awe of rock 'n' roll but also wanting to destroy rock 'n' roll.

So, how does one destroy rock 'n' roll?

Maybe it's different now. But 20 years ago, there was sort of an unwritten rule that you don't talk about how fake rock 'n' roll really was. ... The Pumpkins came along and were willing to poke holes in the alternative world, in the facetiousness of the whole thing.

ANGELA WEISS/WIREIMAGE/GETTY IMAGES

Are there no taboos in rock 'n' roll anymore?

I think it's reasonable [to say] that it's been fully explored. That's not necessarily a bad thing. All art goes through that. ... In many ways, rock 'n' roll has become kitsch art. It's not dangerous anymore, as much as it used to be.

Touring under the Smashing Pumpkins name, how do you decide which old songs to play?

I'm only talking about the past, but you'll play a new song that's a pretty good song and the audience applauds and then you play a mediocre old song and the audience acts like it's the greatest song they've ever heard. As an artist, you're standing there saying, "OK, that's not real. That's a memory-sensory reaction." ... It's about finding stuff that you can really feel strongly about, that you'll actually get the audience to feel what you're playing in that moment.

So it's about getting the order of things right?

No, it's like, look — I don't know how many songs that I've got that are like no-brainer songs that I should play. No matter how badly I play them, the audience is going to be like, "Yeaaaah!" My job is to put that song into a position that when I do play it ... they actually hear something different in the song because of the way it's been portrayed or where it is in the set. ... We're in 2011, and this music is important because it still connects you to something today — not 15 years ago when you were in the back of the car with Sally. Nostalgia is the death of all art.

Recently R.E.M. broke up. Some might think they broke up only so that they can do a reunion tour in five years.

Well, I think that is a completely reasonable way to look at it, considering what the business has turned into. [But] I know those people personally and I know that that would be the last thing that they would do.

Movie review

'The Three Musketeers'

Director: Paul W.S. Anderson
Cast: Logan Lerman, Orlando Bloom, Luke Evans, Matthew Macfadyen, Ray Stevenson
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●○○○

"All for one, and one for all" — that hackneyed battle cry of 17th century swashbuckling Frenchmen has been croaked yet again. This time round, director Paul W.S. Anderson of the 'Resident Evil' saga is in charge of injecting joie de vivre into this ol' Dumas tale.

▶ "The Three Musketeers"

On the face of it, Anderson has the weaponry to carry the story of the usual gang of four into the 21st century: an 'ensemble' cast of some critical clout, along with sumptuous decor and locations, all glittering in lush 3-D.

The director may have the wherewithal, but where is the story? One would be at pains to find it. From the opening scene, when one musketeer rises from a Venetian canal donning a black ninja costume, we are treated to a litany of faux pas and anachronisms: dodgy American accents in European settings, staccato and predictable punchlines that are utterly forgettable and eye-rolling action sequences involving 'steampunk-inspired' gargantuan blimps.

What pleasure can be gained from this garish, irreverent display? Yes, this self-consciously stupid movie doesn't take itself seriously — but worst of all, it has that flippant attitude toward its audience.

Bean goes Bond

'Johnny English Reborn'
Director: Oliver Parker
Cast: Rowan Atkinson, Rosamund Pike
Rating: PG Grade: ●●●○○
You can be excused for questioning the need to resurrect Rowan Atkinson's James Bond spoof eight years after we all roundly ignored the original. The sequel still relies on bad puns and sight gags to hold the attention of its audience (mostly pre-pubescent boys). But as far as movies with bad puns and sight gags go, this one is pretty good. Thank Atkinson for that, as he still has the ability to make this character loveable while mugging for the camera.

"Paranormal Activity 3" takes the prequel approach by showing heroine Katie in her younger years.

The new "Paranormal" film is a prequel to the first films and follows the template set by the first two movies. Set in the VHS era of 1988, recurring characters Katie and Kristi Rey are little girls living with their mother (Lauren Bittner) and her boyfriend (Christopher Nicholas Smith), a wedding video editor. When they start hearing strange sounds in their new Carlsbad, California, house, he sets up video cameras to find out what's keeping them up at night. The movie asks the question, "Is the boyfriend obsessed, or is the house possessed?"

The movie did frighten us — but only in the last 15 minutes, which were terrific. It was a bit too long getting going and had a bit too much dark humor to create that air of dread right off the top. The first two installments of the franchise really creeped people out; this one is better made, but didn't give the real punch until the end.

It takes real filmmaking talent to look this artless. One thing that's great about the series, and this movie in particular, is how much of the plot takes place at the edges of the screen. You really have to pay attention to see what's really happening in the frame. Also pleasing was the fact that the movie had a backstory and plot; although, cleverly, you don't realize it until the movie is done.

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

– Dorothy Robinson will return on Tuesday.

Remember when she cared enough to get a spray tan and brush her hair for us? From left: Lindsay Lohan's court booking photo from Wednesday evening, Sept. 2010, July 2010, Nov. 2007 and July 2007.

Lindsay off to a bad start

WWW.METRO.US/WORD
VISIT US ONLINE FOR MORE

Less than 24 hours after being taken into custody for failing to perform her court-ordered community service, Lindsay Lohan managed to show up late to her new gig at the L.A. County Morgue and was turned away.

Not that it was her fault, of course. In a statement to TMZ, the sometimes-actress' publicist explained that she was 40 minutes late Thursday morning due to "a combination of not knowing what entrance to go through and confusion caused by the media waiting for her arrival."

The girl's had a tough couple years. And if today goes "well," she'll be cleaning autopsy tables. So we're willing to ignore that little "blame the media" dig for now. But just a warning, Linds: We're fresh out of material on you, and these "Lindsay Lohan was late to the morgue" jokes are writing themselves over here. Play nice.

No hard feelings from Jill Zarin

Although her job for four years was essentially to gossip and manufacture drama on "The Real Housewives of New York," ex-cast member Jill Zarin was all air kisses when discussing the show with Parade.com: "I had a four-year run on a very successful show. And it's just now starting to air in Europe. I get about 50 e-mails a day from the U.K., Germany, Israel and Australia — we're all over the world. The show will continue — good or bad — to live on in reruns on Bravo and any other network."

That's right: worldwide undead "Real Housewives." The end, friends, is certainly near.

Kellan Lutz isn't gay, ladies — he's just not that into you

"I've heard that people think I'm gay. I've heard it all," the actor tells the Advocate. "See, I don't really go after girls. Most of the girlfriends I've had have come after me. So it's really funny when girls get offended because I don't hit on them. They will transform their insecurity into, 'Oh, that makes sense, because I heard you're into guys and have a boyfriend.' I'm like, 'Seriously? That's your tactic to get me to like you?'"

Lutz

No, Kellan. I opted for a super creepy caption-writing spree when "Twilight: New Moon" came out. Which, I'd like to point out, was also suspiciously unsuccessful.

Talking points

French don't care, but we do

Carla Bruni-Sarkozy and her husband, French president Nicolas Sarkozy, welcomed their first child, Giulia, this week, according to The Telegraph. The baby is the first child born to a ruling French leader since Napoleon. Of course, the new mom doesn't see this as news, as Bruni-Sarkozy told the BBC last month: "There isn't much to say. So many women are expecting children and giving birth, and it's so uninteresting for French people."

Hurray for ScarJoseph!

A work-related meeting reportedly led to something more for Scarlett Johansson and Joseph Gordon-Levitt, as sources tell Us Weekly the two were spotted making out in New York recently. "They were kissing," a source says. "They were very lovey."

A girl for Jessica?

Reports on Jessica Simpson's alleged pregnancy have moved past when she'll announce it and onto what the gender of the baby will be. And the answer is a girl, according to Hollyscoop. "She's telling people it's like winning the lottery, twice," a source says of Simpson. "Jessica really wanted to find out the baby's sex, she hates surprises. She and [fiance] Eric [Johnson] are both so happy."

Taylor Swift: Not that girl

Taylor Swift says she's extremely single these days — and very happy that way. "I don't have a boyfriend. I don't even have, like, kind of a boyfriend. I don't have someone that I'm texting that is a guy that someday might be my boyfriend," the country crooner tells Ellen DeGeneres during a visit to her talk show. "If you're the girl that needs a boyfriend, and once she loses that boyfriend needs to replace it with a different boyfriend, it's just this constant stream of boyfriends all the time. I don't ever want to be that girl."

Where are they now? Stars with criminal records

As Lindsay Lohan's courtroom drama is renewed for yet another season, we take this time to check in on other stars who have gotten into trouble with the law.

1. All eyes are on Lindsay Lohan as we await her next court date on Nov. 2, where she may be facing some serious jail time. She was seen here attending a court hearing in Los Angeles, Calif., on Wednesday.

2. She spoke of new beginnings during her jail time in 2007, but just last month, Paris Hilton completed her one-year probation for her 2010 drug arrest. There may be no new beginning, but this is surely not the end for Hilton, who was seen here attending the "Dirty Dancing" musical premiere in Germany on Wednesday.

3. Shia LaBeouf looked all prim and proper at the "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" premiere in New York City in June, but just last week the actor — who was arrested for driving under the influence in 2008 — got into a fistfight outside a bar in Vancouver.

4. George Michael has been arrested a number of times — even landing in jail last year — and we're guessing that the British pop star won't be keeping quiet for much longer. Here, he was performing in the Czech Republic in August.

5. The character she played on "The O.C." led a dramatic life, and in reality, Mischa Barton has had a few legal issues of her own. But these days at least, it looks like history is not going to repeat itself: She looked fresh-faced at the launch of her own handbag line in New York City last month.

6. Nicole Richie, who attended ELLE's 18th Annual Women In Hollywood Event in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Monday, is certainly projecting herself as a proud mother, a devoted wife and a good citizen — her drug-using and illegal-driving days are over!

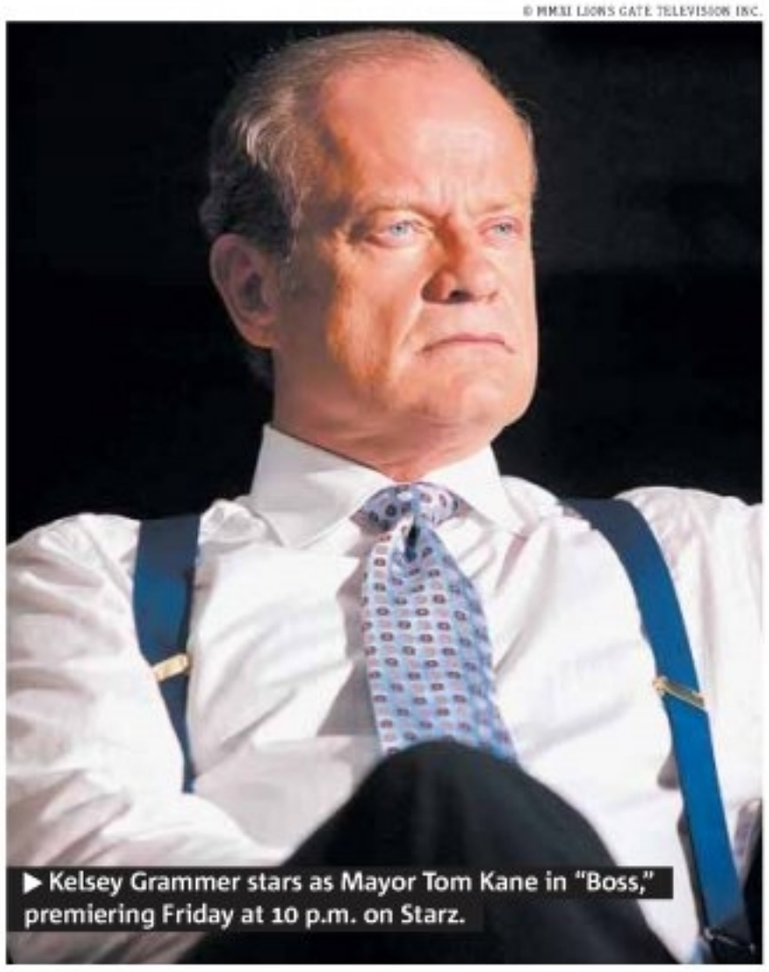
How to be the 'Boss'



▶ Kelsey Grammer stars as Mayor Tom Kane in "Boss," premiering Friday at 10 p.m. on Starz.

Kelsey Grammer keeps Chicago running — by whatever means necessary — in the new Starz drama

Kelsey Grammer's Tom Kane is the deeply ambitious, yet flawed (read: corrupt), mayor of Chicago in the new Starz drama "Boss." As the actor best known for his comedic chops — he played Dr. Frasier Crane for 20 years on "Cheers," then "Frasier" — takes a turn into the dramatic, here's how he tapped into his dark side.

Never let them see you sweat

The most powerful man in Chicago receives a devastating blow in the opening scenes of the pilot: He is diagnosed with Lewy body dementia, a rare disease associated with Alzheimer's.

▶ "It's really a dramatic device ... for the benefit of raising the stakes in this guy's life," Grammer says. "What this malady may do is force him into a position where he suddenly realizes that preserving his own place is the greatest good. He's accustomed to power, and he will go kicking and screaming on his way down toward hell."

Stray from the norm

After three failed attempts to return to comedic television post-"Frasier," Grammer decided to take a break.

"After my heart attack, I spent the next several months looking at my own life," says the 56-year-old. "I cast my ... imaginative net over the next 30 or 40 years, whatever they may be. And I just decided I didn't want to have that story be my last story. And so I decided that it was time to make changes that involved my career as well as my personal life. And doing a drama started to make really good sense because it took me back to my roots ... to things I believed in."

Be bad to be loved

Grammer likens Kane to the scheming Iago in Shakespeare's "Othello."

"Iago is one of the most liked characters in Shakespeare's canon, and he's the most extraordinarily manipulative person in history," Grammer says. "I think there's at least a kind of a similarity with [Kane]."

Kane, however, doesn't necessarily view himself as the bad guy.

"He's completely convinced that there's a working model and justification for doing anything you have to do to remain in power," Grammer says. "It's just for the better good. He believes he's the one that's most qualified to make the decision ... to either eliminate an enemy or embrace an enemy and make something good happen."

Public enemy?

"MEET ME AT THE PLAZA," NYTIMES.COM, OCT. 19.
What is public? The word — derived from the Latin "populis" meaning "the people" — is typically used to describe groups of individuals. But the line has become increasingly blurred regarding corporations.

Tensions between private and public interests have blossomed since the NYPD convinced OWS protesters to make a home of Zuccotti Park. The park — once known by the Tahrir-esque One Liberty Plaza before being renamed in honor of a corporate ally on the city zoning board — is what is known as a "privately owned public space," a seemingly paradoxical legal entity born out of New York City's need to temper its glass, steel and concrete with usable green space. Property owners — in this case Brookfield Properties — receive lucrative zoning concessions in return for a public contribution and the stipulation that their rules governing the shared space be "reasonable." Who decides said reasonability? That remains a private matter.

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ Is Zuccotti public or not?

Before these protests, Brookfield's view of "reasonable" centered on restricting use of bicycles and skateboards. Recently, however, the corporation has come to rethink its linguistic assessment. Last week, notices circulated warning of new rules prohibiting "lying down on the ground" and "the placement of tarps or sleeping bags." That could be a huge problem as winter settles over the city.

Wealthy landlords are currently working on plans to prevent future occupations of public spaces. Says Steven Spinola, president of the city's Real Estate Board: "If you can say that the plazas are closed between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m., I'm not sure who that's harming." Here's a hint: It's not him and his private-interest buddies.

Is that reasonable? It depends on who you ask.

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. You won't have any trouble keeping up with the Joneses, because to your peers you are already a stellar attraction. Putting on pretenses to enhance your image won't be necessary.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Although at times you are inclined to think that no one cares about you, a situation might develop that'll prove how much everyone likes you.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. When you relax, you're a charmer who impresses everyone with whom you're in contact. It will be one of those times when obvious approval will smother any feelings of rejection.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. An opportunity to help better your financial position will be orchestrated by someone who has a stake in your affairs. You may not know about this input, but you'll dig the results.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Although you may never realize the impact of your words, you'll have a faculty for saying all the right things that will uplift the spirits of another and change their world.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. You don't have to achieve an understanding with everyone at work, only with those who are in a position to make your life easier.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. When exchanging ideas with someone whose mind you respect, be more of a listener than a talker. Chances are he or she will offer some interesting information you can use.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If confronted with a challenge by someone who has opposed you previously, don't back down. Proving what you have to offer is both productive and effective.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. You've had to learn to forge order out of chaos, because you have a talent for making a mess in the first place. Trust your gift and apply it without hesitation whenever needed.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. There's a good chance that something you wanted changed will be altered, but owing to someone else's influence, not yours. If it helps you, who cares?

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Because you are a fast thinker who possesses sound judgment, you should be able to come up with a solution to a problem that needs an instant, creative answer. Don't hesitate.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. With your natural resourcefulness, you'll have some ingenious concepts at your fingertips. Even though you may pull them out of thin air, the things you envision will be very doable.

The importance of shopping

If you had the Browns in last Sunday's game against the Raiders at +6.5, you probably gave up when they were down 24-7 in the fourth quarter. If you had them at +7, maybe you stayed on. But if you had +7.5, you knew you had a shot for a backdoor win.

Of course, the Browns rallied in garbage time and ended up losing by seven. The message: Shopping for the best line is a necessity, not a luxury. It's perhaps the No. 1 tool that separates "sharp" bettors from "square" bettors.

Tons of NFL games are decided by exactly three or seven points. Sportsbooks know this. So simply shopping for the best possible number could very well add up to a lot of profit.

How? If you bet online, use multiple sites. And don't look past buying from 2.5 to 3. ADAM LEVITAN

Rare sight for the NFL: Contrite Ryan

New York's big man apologizes for dissing Chargers coach • Turner's retort questions Ryan's missing rings • Patriots football back next week

It seems that even when Rex Ryan isn't trying to be controversial, he just can't help himself.

On a conference call Wednesday, the Jets head coach tried to compliment this week's opponent, San Diego, which passed on Ryan as its head coach four years ago.

"Well, I think I would have had a couple of rings [had he been hired]," Ryan said. "I'm telling you, those teams were loaded."

Thursday morning, the New York tabloids read "Ring Ding" and "No Ring Circus." That's not exactly how Ryan hoped his comments would come across.

Chargers head coach Norv Turner responded in kind.

"I didn't have a chance to ask him this," Turner said, "but I was wondering if he had those rings with the ones he's guaranteed the last couple of years."

(Perhaps this is why Bill Belichick prefers to keep out of as many soap operas as possible.)

Ryan apologized again — after calling Turner privately Wednesday — at Thursday's presser.

"It's all on me; I'm guilty, absolutely," Ryan said. "I did call Norv, I won't get into that conversation but it was unintentional. I think we're even because he did get me with a good comeback, there's no question."

GETTY IMAGES

All of this adds to a rivalry that has gone overlooked in the NFL. The Jets won at San Diego, 17-13, in the playoffs in Ryan's first year. More infamously, New York beat them in the 2005 playoffs thanks to a Nate Kaeding missed field goal.

San Diego stands at 4-1 this season, while the Jets are 3-3 with wins over Dallas, Jacksonville and Miami — teams that have a combined record of 3-13. MARK OSBORNE

Patriots off

This week is a welcome break for AFC East-leading Patriots.

They're back in action next weekend, when they visit Pittsburgh (4:15 p.m., CBS, 98.5 FM). The Giants are up on Nov. 6.

The cold, hard football facts

A look at this weekend's NFL action through the eyes of the football stat experts at Coldhardfootballfacts.com.

Making life tough for QBs

Winning in the NFL is all about passing well on offense and stifling opposing QBs. One way we measure the latter at Cold, Hard Football Facts is with defensive passing yards per attempt. It takes into account the impact of sacks.

Pittsburgh, despite a slow start, has a defense built for the playoffs. High-powered New England, meanwhile, has a critical weak link on 'D' that's likely to snap in the postseason.

Some notable teams in defensive passing yards per attempt:

1. Pittsburgh (4.5 YPA)
2. Baltimore (5.19 YPA)
3. Detroit (5.22 YPA)
8. N.Y. Jets (5.9 YPA)
9. San Francisco (6.0 YPA)
14. N.Y. Giants (6.3 YPA)
18. Philadelphia (6.5 YPA)
21. Green Bay (7.1 YPA)
32. New England (7.9 YPA)

Ffchamps.com's 'Start and Sit'

Start him
Bears QB Jay Cutler has been as hit-or-miss as a Nicolas Cage movie, but Chicago's field general is coming off a two-TD effort against Minnesota. We expect Cutler to put in a strong encore performance against Tampa Bay's 26th-ranked pass defense at Wembley Stadium.

Sit him
Jets QB Mark Sanchez averaged just 162 passing yards with a total of three TD passes over the last three weeks as the Jets committed more to the ground attack. He's not a good bet to do much.

WEEKEND FOOTBALL BETTING GUIDE

FALCONS 3-3 at LIONS 5-1

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Lions -3.5 (O/U 47.5)
The Scoop: The Lions haven't ruled RB Jahvid Best out, but the line did drop a full point. Stay tuned.
Pick: Lions

TEXANS 3-3 at TITANS 3-2

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Titans -3 (O/U 44.5)
The Scoop: Texans are 0-5 in last five games as underdog. Titans were 1-7 after the bye last year. Pick 'em.
Pick: Titans

SEAHAWKS 2-3 at BROWNS 2-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Browns -3 (O/U 41)
The Scoop: Charlie Whitehurst will start and 'Hawks are getting points versus offensively challenged teams.
Pick: Seahawks

REDSKINS 3-2 at PANTHERS 1-5

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Panthers -2.5 (O/U 43)
The Scoop: In John Beck we trust. 'Skins are 4-0 ATS in last four in this series and underdog is 9-0.
Pick: Redskins

BRONCOS 1-4 at DOLPHINS 0-5

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Dolphins -1.5 (O/U 43)
The Scoop: Road dog lock. This is a virtual home game for Tim Tebow.
Pick: Broncos

CHARGERS 4-1 at JETS 3-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Chargers -2 (O/U 43.5)
The Scoop: SD has yet to record a signature win and are 1-5 ATS in last six in this series. Don't trust Norv.
Pick: Jets

STEELERS 4-2 at CARDINALS 1-4

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: Steelers -4 (O/U 41.5)
The Scoop: Steelers' 'D' is tops versus the pass and ARZ is pass-happy. Plus, PITT is 17-3 when favored in last 20.
Pick: Steelers

CHIEFS 2-3 at RAIDERS 4-2

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: Raiders -4 (O/U 42.5)
The Scoop: Underdog is 8-0 ATS in last eight in this series. Ignore that. Al Davis memorial tour rolls on.
Pick: Raiders

RAMS 0-5 at COWBOYS 2-3

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Cowboys -11.5 (O/U 44)
The Scoop: Rams are winless and haven't covered a spread all season. Oh, and they're BAD at football.
Pick: Cowboys

PACKERS 6-0 at VIKINGS 1-5

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Packers -9 (O/U 46.5)
The Scoop: Pack swept series in '10 and 21-10 ATS in 31 division games.
Pick: Packers

Bears vs. Buccaneers (1 p.m. Sunday)

LINE: Bears -1 (O/U 44)

KEY INJURIES: WR Devin Hester (chest) probable. T Gabe Carimi (knee) questionable. RB LeGarrette Blount (knee) out. C Jeff Faine (biceps) probable. DT Gerald McCoy questionable.

THE SCOOP: Can we please stop playing football in England? It's rainy, the Wembley field was built for soccer and the game isn't even sold out. Anyway, for betting purposes, this has all the makings of a slow burner: ground and pound, with a lot of defense, something both squads are equipped for. The Bucs played in London in 2009 (in a 35-7 blowout loss) so they have some experience with the travel/weather. They are also 7-2 ATS in their last nine games as the betting underdog.

PICK: Buccaneers

COLTS 0-6 at SAINTS 4-2

SUNDAY, 8:20 P.M.

Line: Saints -14 (O/U 48.5)
The Scoop: Saints have failed to cover for the past two weeks, but here come the Colts. At the SuperDome, where NO is 2-0 ATS. Meanwhile, Indy is an absolute mess. Fans are calling for Jim Caldwell's job and the Colts offense ranks 31st in yards and 28th in points. Good luck keeping up with Drew Brees & Co.
Pick: Saints

RAVENS 4-1 at JAGUARS 1-5

MONDAY, 8:30 P.M.

Line: Ravens -7.5 (O/U 39)
The Scoop: Man, can we please start flexing Monday night games? This has all the makings of the Heidi Bowl — without the dramatic comeback. Ravens come in 4-1 ATS, 5-1 against the number in their last six Monday nighters and have won seven of last eight in this series. Play the over, it could get ugly.
Pick: Ravens

W. VIRGINIA NO. 11, 5-1 at SYRACUSE 4-2

FRIDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: West Virginia -14.5
The Scoop: You have to figure the Orange can keep it close — the Mountaineers are a paper tiger.
Pick: Syracuse

N. CAROLINA 5-2 at CLEMSON NO. 8, 7-0

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: Clemson -11
The Scoop: The over has hit in six of the Tigers' last eight games, and five of six at home.
Pick: Clemson

KANSAS ST. NO. 12, 6-0 at KANSAS 2-4

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: Kansas State -11.5
The Scoop: Kansas State is going to go all Bo Jackson/Marcus Allen over the nation's worst defense.
Pick: Kansas State

OKLA. ST. NO. 6, 6-0 at MISSOURI 3-3

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: Oklahoma State -7.5
The Scoop: Cowboys are 5-1 ATS this season and thinking national title averaging 49.2 points per contest.
Pick: Oklahoma State

BC 1-5 at VA. TECH NO. 16, 6-1

SATURDAY, 3 P.M.

Line: Virginia Tech -21
The Scoop: BC couldn't make up 21 points last week. Or this week.
Pick: Virginia Tech

AUBURN NO. 19, 5-2 at LSU NO. 1, 7-0

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: LSU -22
The Scoop: Maybe if the game was in Auburn (5-14-1 in Baton Rouge). No, probably not even then.
Pick: LSU

OREGON NO. 9, 5-1 at COLORADO 1-6

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: Oregon -31
The Scoop: Ducks are banged up (LaMichael James, Darron Thomas), and COL is 3-0-1 as home dog.
Pick: Colorado

AIR FORCE 3-3 at BOISE STATE NO. 5, 6-0

SATURDAY, 6 P.M.

Line: Boise State -31.5
The Scoop: All the trends point to Boise (10-0 in October, 6-0 SU, 4-2 ATS), and they covered 32 last week.
Pick: Boise State

TENNESSEE 3-3 at ALABAMA NO. 2, 7-0

SATURDAY, 7:15 P.M.

Line: Alabama -30
The Scoop: Roll Tide. 'Bama giving up just seven points per game — and Tennessee has QB issues.
Pick: Alabama

WISCONSIN NO. 4, 6-0 at MICH. ST. NO. 15, 5-1

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Wisconsin -8
The Scoop: Both are chalk machines. Flip a coin, or take the points.
Pick: Michigan State

NASCAR to honor fallen racer

NASCAR Sprint Cup and Truck Series teams will have Dan Wheldon memorial stickers on their vehicles for this weekend's events at Talladega Superspeedway.

The track is also planning moments of silence for Wheldon on Saturday and Sunday.

Wheldon, 33, was killed in a horrific 15-car pileup on the 11th lap of the Las Vegas Indy 300 last weekend.

"There's no way it can't be on people's minds," driver Jeff Burton told reporters.

"Even though it's a different series, and I didn't really know Dan at all, it's still ... he's part of a fraternity, and it's always difficult," Burton said. METRO

Regatta a different challenge for rowers

The long, bending course makes the Head of the Charles especially tough But elite rowers like New Zealand's Drysdale still come back

When you think about it, Mahe Drysdale makes a pretty good point.

Even by the brutally tough standards of competitive rowing, the Head of the Charles Regatta is really, really tough.

Take Drysdale, a multiple-time world champion and 2008 Olympic bronze medalist in the single scull race.

A New Zealander, he's used to training on open lake water for the typical international distance of two kilometers. His world record over that length of race is 6:33.35.

On the Charles this weekend, Drysdale will be faced with a bending, turning course featuring six bridges — most unlike a lake. And rather than two kilometers, he'll be rowing some three miles — nearly five kilometers.

"It's a different sort of challenge," said Drysdale, who will be racing in Saturday's championship singles and Sunday's directors' challenge quads. "It's always worthwhile."

For an elite racer like Drysdale, the Regatta isn't the be-all, end-all of a season — that's either the world championships or the Olympics, depending on the year.

But that doesn't stop him from coming to Boston time after time, even if it means a lengthy flight and using a borrowed boat for the week.

"I love the city," Drysdale said. "The people are extremely friendly. Every time we come here, we always have a really good time. It's a beautiful place — if you ever manage to row on the Charles, you know how beautiful it is."

1 NBA commissioner David Stern missed Thursday's negotiating session between the league's owners and players due to the flu. The sides reportedly made "baby steps" on several key issues during marathon meetings Tuesday and Wednesday.

2 Geno Auriemma thinks he knows what would have solved the Big East's realignment issues before they began: Notre Dame's football team coming into the fold long ago. "How long are we going to date before we decide this ain't working?" he said.

3 Three LSU players — cornerbacks Tyrann Mathieu and Tharold Simon and running back Spencer Ware — will miss Saturday's game against Auburn after testing positive for synthetic marijuana earlier this month, according to online reports.

4 Allen Craig and the Cardinals carried a 1-0 World Series lead into Thursday night's late Game 2 against the Rangers in St. Louis. Craig drove in the eventual winning run in the sixth inning of Wednesday's 3-2 victory. Game 3 is Saturday (8:05 p.m., FOX), with Kyle Lohse and Matt Harrison pitching.

PALMER, LLOYD MOVING

The NFL's trading deadline is usually as exciting as a Joe Paterno game plan. Not this year.

In a surprising turn of events, Carson Palmer, Brandon Lloyd and Mike Sims-Walker will all be pulling on new uniforms come Sunday. Let the adjustments begin.

Which Carson?

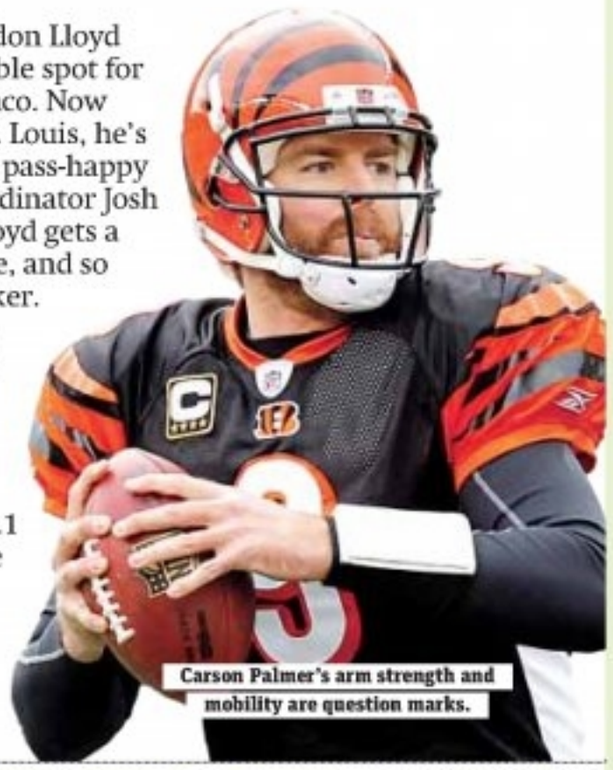
Between 2004 and 2006, Palmer was one of the best quarterbacks in the NFL. Since then, he's been a shell of himself thanks to elbow and knee injuries. While the Raiders are betting that Palmer will return to form, fantasy owners shouldn't be. Look for the Raiders to ride Darren McFadden and Michael Bush, leaving Palmer as a weak QB2.

Reunited

Wide receivers are dependant on quarterback and scheme. Brandon Lloyd was in a horrible spot for both as a Bronco. Now that he's in St. Louis, he's reunited with pass-happy offensive coordinator Josh McDaniels. Lloyd gets a major upgrade, and so does Eric Decker.

MSW, II

Mike Sims-Walker averaged 3.07 catches for 40.1 yards with the Jags last year. Expecting anything more now is silly.



Carson Palmer's arm strength and mobility are question marks.

Top NFL pickups

DeMarco Murray

- RB, Cowboys

With Felix Jones (ankle) out 2-4 weeks, Murray is the primary early-down back in an explosive offense.

Maurice Morris

- RB, Lions

Morris, will be the lead back when Jahvid Best misses time due to another concussion.

Keep it up

Will the top players at their respective positions sustain production?

1 Fred Jackson, RB, BUF — F-Jax won't finish the year as the No. 1 RB, but he'll be in the top-5. As the weather deteriorates, the Bills will lean on him even more.

2 Calvin Johnson, WR, DET — Megatron is on pace for 24 touchdowns. He will end up with around 18.

3 Jimmy Graham, TE, NO — The scary part is that the ex-hoopster is still learning football. An every-week mismatch, he'll only get better.

Did Eagles medical staff help save a traded player's life?

Jerome Harrison's failed physical may have saved his life.

The Lions running back has a brain tumor that was revealed during a physical Wednesday performed by the Eagles' medical staff. On Tuesday, the teams struck a deal that would have sent Harrison to Philly in exchange for Ronnie Brown and a pick.

Instead, the trade was voided. The 28-year-old Harrison didn't practice with the Lions on Thursday, and head coach Jim Schwartz wouldn't comment on the player's health. METRO
